Abstract: In 2024, cancer remains a significant health challenge in India. The country sees over 1.5 million new cases a year. Breast and oral cancers are most prevalent among women and men, respectively. Sadly, many cases are diagnosed late, impacting survival rates. Improved awareness and access to healthcare are crucial. By 2030, cancer incidence is expected to surpass 1.7 million cases annually. Efforts to enhance prevention, early detection, and treatment access are crucial to mitigate this growing burden. The Adani Vidya Mandir and Adani School students lead research on community challenges, with many findings published in reputed national and international research journals.
